

Development Actions for People Leaders

V Team Central, Powered by Workday Development Actions Table of Contents

Slides for Employees	Page 3
Slides for Associate employees	Page 5
Slides for People Leaders	Page 7
Slides for People Leaders of Associates	Page 8

V Team Central, Powered by Workday

Development Actions

Why is development important?

At Verizon, we view everything we do as an opportunity to learn and do better. We work to unleash our own and each other's potential. Development sets you up for opportunities and supports your career now and in the future.

What are Development Actions?

Development Actions are opportunities to help you grow through continuous learning. Make sure to add a variety of actions to your plan. Do not include only training - make sure to include on-the-job learning such as taking on a stretch opportunity, or working with a peer to learn a new skill.

Where do I find Development Actions?

Search for “My Development Actions” in the search bar to enter and update your Development Actions. You can also navigate to your profile, select the Performance tab and then select Development Actions.

Who can view and modify my development actions?

You and your Manager can view and modify your Development Actions. Human Resources can view Development Actions to provide additional support. Continue to update your Development Actions as your priorities evolve.

How can I make the most of the Development Actions?

- Choose appropriate learning opportunities based on feedback from your Manager. You can look for learning opportunities via Learning Portal or outside the system. Check with your Manager, who can support you by helping you select appropriate learning.
- Take the time to become familiar with the VZ V Team Principles and how the principles apply to your role. These principles can guide your Development Actions.
- You can easily update your development status from in-progress to complete. Reach out to your Manager when you update your Development Actions to keep them informed on your progress.

Additional Resources

Verizon V Team Principles
Learning Portal Plan on V Team Principles
My Development About You page

V Team Central, Powered by Workday Development Actions

Things to consider:

- Development Actions are a place for you to capture your current career development goals in alignment with your career aspirations whether you want to continue to grow in your current role, or explore new possibilities.
- Development Actions can relate to the Verizon V Team Principles or jobs you are interested in.
- Take time to consider your goals in order to help you identify the purpose of your Development Actions. For ideas, browse Learning Portal.
- Keep your Development Actions short - you want to prioritize the most important skills.
- Updates to Development Actions are not available via mobile and should be done using your desktop.

How do I get my Manager involved?

- Work with them to assist in identifying knowledge and skills to develop to reach your goals.
- Frequently engage in a collaborative conversation about your goals.
- Seek guidance from them; they are there to support you.

Goals

Performance Reviews

Development Actions

Development Action *

Upskill in Coaching and Apply Raise The Bar

Additional Information

Normal

B

I

U

A

I will attend all Raise the Bar sessions and set aside time to apply the calls to action to enhance my leadership and coaching capabilities

Skills to Develop

X

Coaching

Relates To

X

Champion Growth (V Team Principle)

Status *

X

In Progress

Start Date

04/29/2025

Completion Date

MM/DD/YYYY

Status Note

My plan to support team development includes scheduling quarterly 2+2 meetings for each member and providing regular, ongoing coaching and feedback. This will ensure focused development conversations support individual growth in their role and for their aspirations.

V Team Central, Powered by Workday

Development Actions for Associates

Why is development important?

At Verizon, we view everything we do as an opportunity to learn and do better. We work to unleash our own and each other's potential. Development sets you up for opportunities and supports your career now and in the future.

What are Development actions?

Development Actions are opportunities to help you grow through continuous learning. Make sure to add a variety of actions to your plan. Do not include only training - make sure to work with your manager to explore on the job learning activities such as working with a peer to learn a new skill.

Where do I find Development Actions?

Search for “My Development Actions” in the search bar to enter and update your Development Actions. You can also navigate to your profile, select the Performance tab and then select Development Actions.

Who can view and modify my Development Actions?

You and your manager can view and modify your Development Actions. Human Resources can view Development Actions to provide additional support. Continue to update your Development Actions as your priorities evolve.

How can I make the most of the Development Actions?

- Choose appropriate learning opportunities based on feedback from your manager. You can look for learning opportunities via Learning Portal or outside the system. Check with your manager, they can support you by helping you select appropriate learning.
- Take the time to become familiar with the VZ V Team Principles and how the principles apply to your role. These principles can guide your Development Actions.
- You can easily update your development status from in-progress to complete. Reach out to your manager when you update your Development Actions to keep them informed on your progress.

Resources

Verizon V Team Principles

Learning Portal Pathway on V Team Principles

My Development Page

Development Toolkit for Associates

Update my Development Actions

V Team Central, Powered by Workday

Development Actions for Associates

Important:

For associates, the Development Actions do not replace the Performance Development Plan on the Associate Performance Goals and Development Plan document.

Things to consider:

- Development Actions are a place for you to capture your current career development goals in alignment with your career aspirations whether you want to continue to grow in your current role, or explore new possibilities.
- Development Actions can relate to the Verizon V Team Principles or jobs you are interested in.
- Take time to consider your goals in order to help you identify the purpose of your Development Actions. For ideas, browse Learning Portal.
- Keep your Development Actions short - you want to prioritize the most important skills.
- Updates to Development Actions are not available via mobile and should be done using your desktop.

How do I get my manager involved?

- Work with them to assist in identifying knowledge and skills to develop to reach your goals.
- Frequently engage in a collaborative conversation about your goals.
- Seek guidance from them; they are there to support you.

GoalsPerformance ReviewsDevelopment Actions

Development Action *

Upskill in Coaching and Apply Raise The Bi

Additional Information

NormalB I U A

I will attend all Raise the Bar sessions and set aside time to apply the calls to action to enhance my leadership and coaching capabilities

Skills to Develop

X Coaching

Relates To

X Champion Growth (V Team Principle)

Status *

X In Progress

Start Date

04/29/2025

Completion Date

MM/DD/YYYY

Status Note

My plan to support team development includes scheduling quarterly 2+2 meetings for each member and providing regular, ongoing coaching and feedback. This will ensure focused development conversations support individual growth in their role and for their aspirations.

V Team Central, Powered by Workday

Development Actions for People Leaders

Your role as a People Leader

At Verizon, we view everything we do as an opportunity to learn and do better. We work to unleash our own and each other's potential. As a People Leader, you play a critical role by regularly coaching and developing your employees. In your conversations with your employees, actively review their Development Actions and note progress towards reaching their goals.

Development Actions in V Team Central

Within V Team Central, Development Actions can be aligned to one or more of the Verizon V Team Principles or a job that the employee is interested in.

Do I need to enter my employee's Development Actions?

While you will have access to update Development Actions if your employee needs assistance, employees should own their development and should enter and update their Development Actions. Development Actions are updated on the employee's profile.

Do I need to approve Development Actions?

No, there are no approvals needed. We do encourage you to engage with your employees to check on their progress.

Best Practices

- Career Development discussions should be ongoing conversations with your employees. Discuss Development Actions at least quarterly.
- Reference your employee's Career Profile in your development discussions to gain insight into their previous experience, skills, and career aspirations.

Resources

Verizon V Team Principles
Learning Portal Plan on V Team Principles
My Development About You page

V Team Central, Powered by Workday

Development Actions for People Leaders of Associates

Your role as a People Leader

With Development Actions in V Team Central, you will play an even more important role in development planning for your team members. This is new functionality for associates and it will be critical for you to support your employee in using this tool. Remember, the Verizon V Team Principles are now available to associates. Use the resources included here to support your employees in using the V Team Principles in their career development. Be sure that you are having ongoing conversations with employees on their career development. In your conversations with your employees, actively review their Development Actions and note progress towards reaching their goals.

V Team Central and Development Actions

Within V Team Central, Development Actions can be aligned to one or more of the Verizon V Team Principles or a job that the employee is interested in.

Do I need to enter my employee's Development Actions?

While you will have access to update development actions if your employee needs assistance, employees should own their career development and should enter and update their Development Actions.

Do I need to approve Development Actions?

No, there are no approvals needed. We do encourage you to engage with your employees to check on their progress.

Best Practices

- Support your employees by encouraging them to discuss any interest in exploring career opportunities beyond their current position.
- Ensure your employees have access to the resources that will assist them in realizing their personal career goals.
- Reference your employee's Career Profile in your development discussions to gain insight into their previous experience, skills, and career aspirations.

Important:

For associates, the Development Actions do not replace the Performance Development Plan on the Associate Performance Goals and Development Plan document. The Performance Development Plan is used to identify opportunities that will provide employees with the knowledge and skills to meet performance goals in their current role.

Resources

Verizon V Team Principles

Learning Portal Pathway on V Team Principles

My Development About You page